August 20, 2017 – Eleventh Sunday After Pentecost

History and Development of Chant

Have you ever wondered about the evolution of the various styles of liturgical chant and how they interrelate? Web site www.liturgica.com created the below diagram that depicts their lineage and history. [Diagram copyright Liturgica Holdings LLC, all rights reserved. Used by permission.]

Duane Meloche, RIP

Your prayers are kindly requested for the repose of the soul of Duane Meloche, the father of former Windsor & metro Detroit Latin Mass organist Matthew Meloche. A High Funeral Mass in the Extraordinary Form was celebrated for Duane on Thursday, August 10 at Holy Name of Mary Church in Windsor. Matthew served as Music Director of the St. Benedict Tridentine Community from 2004-2006 and is currently Director of Music at Ss. Simon & Jude Cathedral in Phoenix, Arizona.

Assumption Church Still Tugs at Our Hearts

It is bittersweet every year to have the opportunity to visit Windsor's Assumption Church, as was possible this past Sunday and Tuesday. Closed since November, 2014, the building is slowly deteriorating, yet it retains a grandeur which testifies to our ancestors' ability to express their Catholic faith in sacred art and architecture.

A commenter on Twitter from the U.K. put it well: "It's blindingly obvious that this Church should be in use for the Traditional Liturgy." Indeed. Let us pray that it will be once again.
