Eye Candy from St. Peter's Basilica

For Easter Sunday we think a little beauty will be a good fit for this glorious Feast. First, a depiction of St. Peter's Basilica in Rome.

Next up is a shot of the Papal Altar at St. Peter's. The baldacchino by Bernini which surmounts it is currently undergoing its first major restoration in more than 250 years.

Rococo Eye Candy in Bavaria

Bavaria is known for its over-the-top Baroque and Rococo churches. First, a shot of Ottobeuren Abbey, a Benedictine monastery with a breathtaking interior. The Fraternity of St. Peter has conducted ordinations in the Extraordinary Form and held Vespers in this church.

The similarly ornate Wieskirche is a popular tourist stop. This church has been the site of several prominent organ recordings. A bonus: There is a freestanding tiny chapel outside the main church, a miniature sidekick, beautiful in its own right.
